MRS. ELIAS LOCKS

Clara, Child Born While Her Mother Was a Pauper, Goes to the Mansion in Central Park West with Foster, TRAPEZIST HOME FIRST Father, but Is Denied Admittance.

Sister of Elias Woman Also Comes to the City and with Her Brother Consults a Lawyer Concerning Their Interests in the Riches of Their Sister.

The negro child of Hannah Elias came to New York from Philadelphia to-day, accompanied by her foster-father, Travers Hudson, and went to the mansion occupied by the Elias woman at No. 230 Central Park West. They were denied admittance.

This visit appears to have been the inauguration of a plan on the part of the negro relatives of the Elias woman to get some of her money. Hudson, who has supported the child, Clara, since her infancy, is free to admit that he should be paid something for his care and attention, inasmuch as the mother of the child is enormously rich and of sufficient prominence in New York to be the indirect cause of the murder of one of the most promiment men in the city.

She was considered a refined young woman and her trade soon made her the favorte milliner of the exclusive set in Hackensack. She made money and was prospering until last summer when she is said to have noticed Lupo's attentions to another woman. This woman, it is said, lived in Hackensack, and Mrs. Lupo to bring back her husband, moved from New Jersey to New York. Lupo was then agent for a sewing machine concern. It is said that he made little money and depended largely for his living on his wife's efforts.

TWO VICTIMS OF SHOOTING MAY DIE.

A crowd of union pickets were keeping watch on the plant when two men were leaving the union men set upon them.

The non-union men drew revolvers and shot two of the strikers. Both of the men may die. Two suspects have been arrested, but the men who did the shooting are believed to have made their escape in the confusion following the firing of the shots.

At Twenty-ninth street another mob blocked the cars and threw rocks. The police charged, beating many persons severely with their clubs.

While preparations were being completed for the opening of the State street cable line, not heretofore operated during the strike and on which the fight occurred, rioters were engaged in trying to put out of commission the four lines which the company has been operating on a limited scale. Trolley wires were cut in a half dozen places on Halsted street, and the cars on that line were delayed over an hour while repairs were being made

An effort also was made to blockade Archer avenue, where it apparently was believed cars would be run to-day, quantities of rocks having been hauled in wagons and dumped on the rails.
